

John Conyn

John Conyn is the current Fire Chief of Spencer Fire Department. He holds a distinguished career of 35 years of firefighting and paramedic experience in municipal and military environments along with providing region-level leadership experience in fire suppression, operations, training, and personnel management. Mr. Conyn began his firefighting career early on as a USAF firefighter and crash rescue man. The bulk of Mr. Conyn's career was with the City of Racine Fire Department in Wisconsin. His involvement was extensive as a trainer and leader to his peers. Mr. Conyn maintained an expert skill level in firefighting and emergency response activities, including incident command for fire suppression, HazMat, WMD, confined space rescue, dive rescue, high and low angle technical rescue, EMT services and holds certification of paramedic as well as an ACLS instructor. Conyn also served as training coordinator and outreach liaison for a state of Wisconsin regional hazardous material response team. Mr. Conyn's top focus is the safety of his staff and the public they serve. He leads by example by maintaining multiple related certifications and promotes the education, motivation and skills training for his staff. Sharing his expertise and educating the public is one of his main business focuses as Fire Chief of Webster City and thus -- as a trainer for the Iowa Pipeline Association.
